The T. S. Lawson Trial—Accidents Fatal and Otherwise—Drunkard Frozen to Death—Saddest Death in Trigg—Little Girl Burned to Death.

Tem Lawson on Trial.

Capt. Thos. E. Lawson, the pension attorney of this city, went to Owensboro yesterday to stand his trial on an indictment charging him with fraud in procuring a pension for a negro woman named Eliza Brownough. The case has taken a political turn, more or less, and Capt. Lawson's cause has been warmly espoused by most of the Republican leaders about town. Among those who went with him to Owensboro were Messrs E. P.
Campbell, H. W. Breathitt, J. P.
Prowse, Chas. Prowse, Gus Breathitt,
Spencer Leavell, col., and others.
W. E. Campbell, W. T. Vaughan, J. T.
Smith and others went along as witnesses, as well as several attorneys in the case.

A Distressing Accident.

(Erlington Bee.)

The little thirteen-year-old daughter of Frank Ivy, at Barnesville, and the mainstay of a family of younger children, her mother having died a few years ago, was burned so horribly Wednesday afternoon that death ensued in a few hours after the sad accident occurred. The girl's clothing caught fire from the grate before which she was standing, and before she could obtain assistance, all her clothing with the exception of her shoes were burned from her body.
The father and sorrowing little brothers and sisters have the sympathy of the entire community.

Killed by An L. & N. Train.

Isaiah J. Eakins, a prominent and well-to-do citizen of Robards, a station six miles north of Sebree, was killed by a passenger train Friday.
Eakins was a passenger on the train and had spent the day in Henderson transacting business. He was busy conversing with a friend when the train reached the station and did not step off until it was again in motion.
By some means he was thrown under the wheels and both legs were crushed off. He lingered for four hours in great agony, before death came to his relief. He was about fifty years old and leaves a family.

Kiger Captured.

C. D. Kiger, under a twenty years' sentence for murder, who escaped from the Nashville jail several weeks ago, has been captured and returned to prison. He was arrested at Hillsboro, Tenn. At the time of Kiger's escape three brother murders also got out, and two of them are still at large. Kiger is known in this city, having worked here as a printer some years ago.

Pink Dunn's Sudden Death.

Mr. L. P. Dunn, a prominent Trigg county farmer, died very suddenly of paralysis at his home, near Dorcy, on the 20th inst. About noon Mr.
Dunn was stricken with paralysis and became speechless and entirely helpless, dying in a few hours. He was about fifty years old and leaves a family consisting of wife and six children. He was one of Trigg's best and most prosperous citizens.

Broke his Collar Bone.

An unknown man while wandering around the coke ovens at Erlington one night last week, carelessly fell from a bridge and had his shoulder bone broken. He claimed to have fallen from Kelly, this county, and after his injuries were dressed, he was sent to that place.

Blow Down a Barn.

During the wind storm Friday night Mr. J. T. Powell, a farmer living near Trenton, had a barn blown down and two horses were killed.
Mr. Powell's loss is several hundred dollars.

Liquor Did the Work.

James Landrum, while drunk, fell from his horse near Bowling Green and froze to death in sight of his home Friday night.

Four children of Andrew Cole, in Lawrence county, are under treatment at Louisiana for hydrophobia.

Bright Little Girl's Sad Death.

Howell, Ky. Jan. 27.—As the result of severe burns, Juanita, the four year old daughter of J. A. Giles, a farmer living two miles from this place, died this morning at 7 o'clock.
The little girl was in a room with only her little brother and sister, children not very much older than she,
and having spilled some water on her apron, she held it before the grate to dry when it caught on fire and in a moment the little child was enveloped in flames. A young man in an adjoining room, hearing the screams of the children, rushed to the rescue, and by wrapping his coat around the child, soon extinguishing the flames, but not before she had inhaled the flames and her face was burned almost beyond recognition. The unfortunate accident occurred about 6
p. m. yesterday, and the little sufferer lingered in terrible agony until this
a. m. as above stated, when death came to her relief.

Juanita was a bright winsome child,
a general favorite with all who knew her, and her grief stricken parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their sore bereavement.

CAMILLE.

THE BULLDOG.

Has been cultivated until it is a Harmless Luxury.

There has been recently some adverse English comment on the American taste in bulldogs. It is intimated that it is a feature of Anglomani-a and not to be compared with the genuine English love for the ugliest of its kind. The American loves bulldogs as he loves hothouse flowers.
He buys only champions. Yet without his usual acuteness he buys the champion when he is going down hill.
The one instance given of when he really knew a good thing is that of the Bagebury Lion.

For this dog there is an English authority that its owner was offered $1,750 by a New Yorker at 5 months old. The offer was refused. The dog afterward came to this country for $100. Brienmarie also came to this country, the price being $500. His Lordship, a descendant of Don Pedro,
the most aristocratic of all bulldogs, is also in the United States. Don Pedro is 13 years old, and it seems that the average age of a bulldog is only 10 years. The bulldog in England is a noble animal. He is an arrangement of "man and Providence."

This is admitted. The owner's delight and the dockers' darling was a very different beast 20 years ago.
The bulldog's nose has been gradually retired, until it is scarcely more than an amusing suggestion. His under jaw has been brought up and he has assumed the prominence that really belongs to the nose. Philanthropic people have commented from time to time on the propriety of interposing on the part of the nose. It is said, and not without reason, that the nose is a sort of a purchase point in seizing hold, and moreover, that the upper jaw being forcibly retired in the displacement of the nose the lower jaw is not properly supported in its business of holding on. The bulldog was once intended by nature for a useful life.
He is now a creature of luxury, a lady's pet.

Sam Frankel to the Front.

If there are any special bargains being offered by the merchants of Hopkinsville, you will always find them set forth in detail, in the columns of the Kentuckian, the medium long universally recognized as the accepted battleground of local advertisers. In this issue Sam Frankel has charted a whole page to outline the extent to which he has slashed prices in a great Shovel-
'Em-Out sale to be inaugurated to-morrow. His quotations speak for themselves and are worthy of the careful perusal of our readers. This house

THE GOULD MAUSOLEUM.

Two Well-Paid Officers Watch It Day and Night.

The Late Millionaire's Remains Are in a Massive Tomb with His Bronze Doors—Many Visitors Come to See It.

More than two years ago the remains of Jay Gould were deposited in one of the catacombs of the mausoleum at Woodlawn cemetery at New York which had been erected under his own personal supervision nine years before. Among the many beautiful and costly monuments in this country the Gould mausoleum is unquestionably the strongest. The most perfect of bank-breaking tools would be required to force an entry through its granite walls or double bronze doors, each of which weighs a ton. The Gould family, however, are unwilling to take any chances of a repetition of the A. T. Stewart grave-robbing conspiracy, and they have caused the massive resting place of the bones of the great financier to be closely guarded by day and by night. The guards are two well-paid special policemen, ex-Police Captain G. W. Gastlin and ex-Policeman Richard Holloway.

Each does twelve hours' duty in the twenty-four. By mutual agreement the two watchmen exchange watches every month. At the present time Holloway is on duty at night, and he remains in the immediate vicinity of the tomb, sheltered in indecent manner only by the periscope of the mausoleum. Woodlawn cemetery is regularly patrolled at night by a watchman, who makes the complete round once every hour, reviewing his movements by means of an automatic clock at each of the three gates.

This watchman crosses over Central avenue, which crosses the Gould family, and part of his duty is to note the presence of the special watchman, of which he makes a report every morning. Watchman Holloway was seen by a New York World reporter. "There is nothing to tell," said he, "except that the captain and I are employed to watch the tomb. It is a little lonesome at night, and during the winter and on rainy nights it is very uncomfortable. But then there are men who have much more to do. The cemetery and the city would not, of course, permit the erection of a sentry box, so whoever is on the night watch has got to meet the weather with rubbers and thick overcoats.

"The monotony of the watch at night is broken by the cemetery watchman who comes around every hour. The regular mounted policeman comes on his rounds, and he generally stops to bid the time of night. In the summer time the job is all right. Then I sit down on the steps of the tomb and smoke and read by the light of a lantern.

"A man gradually learns to surround himself with little comforts, no matter how he is fixed. For instance, I carry a little spirit lamp out there, and when I feel like it I light myself a couple of good hot coffees. The day watch is as pleasant an outdoor berth as any man would want. Capt. Gastlin and I have been on this post for two years, and in all that time I have had no adventure worth speaking of.

No attempt has ever been made to dig the tomb. Anything that tried it would get a good game. I have means for sounding an alarm that would be pretty near general and could summon all the assistance I might need.

"When I am on the day watch I have to act as a sort of guide and tell visitors all about the mausoleum. I have got the story down very pat, and it doesn't take me long to rattle it off.

"This plot is one acre in extent, and is called Lake View, because it overlooks Woodlawn lake. It cost $20,000. The mausoleum cost $80,000, and was completed in December, 1887. Mr. Gould stipulated that it should be strong and massive as possible, not pretentiously large, and as simply beautiful as possible.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

Eighty-two women were successful in gaining the B. A. degree from the London University at the last examination.

CHARLOTTE FORSTER WELLS was the first woman publisher. She has been in business since 1844, and is still at it in New York.

A woman who wanted to play Lady Macbeth in a popular amateur show refused to do so because she couldn't have big sleeves for her sleep-walking gown.

For the first time a woman has received the degree of doctor of literature from London university in the person of Miss Davies, a graduate of Glaston.

Mrs. CASMER-PERIER has kept up the charitable custom of helping two hundred poor widows at Christmas since 1840. This good work was started by Miss Carrol.

Mrs. HESSE L. HACKETT, a New England girl, has received the first prize in a watch for writing the best advertisement of the merits of a newly-introduced paint.

Both of the legs of Miss Eva Dooley, of Boston, were amputated at the knee recently to save her life. They were poisoned by the dye in red stockings which she had been wearing.

Mrs. NAT COLLINS, widely known as the "Montana Catnip," will soon issue a volume of reminiscences, giving a history of over forty years of life in the camp and on the prairie.

At Gardiner, Mo., there is a good-looking and spry young woman who draws a grocery wagon. No fear of her wasting her time fooling with the current girls unless they have got new bonnets.

Mrs. OMISTON CHANT, the English reformer, says that she has been offered five thousand pounds to be silent and to cease carrying on the crusade against the music halls and similar places of amusement.

Mrs. HANNAH M. KING, of Corpus Christi, Tex., owns eighteen hundred and seventy-five square miles of land in Texas, or about a million and a quarter acres.

THE GOULD MAUSOLEUM.

Two Well-Paid Officers Watch It Day and Night.

The Late Millionaire's Remains are in a Massive Tomb with Big Bronze Doors—Many Visitors Come to See It.

More than two years ago the remains of Jay Gould were deposited in one of the catacombs of the mausoleum at Woodlawn cemetery at New York which had been erected under his own personal supervision nine years before. Among the many beautiful and costly monuments in this country the Gould mausoleum is unquestionably the strongest. The most perfect of bank-breaking tools would be needed to force an entry through its granite walls or double bronze doors, each of which weighs a ton. The Gould family, however, are unwilling to take any chances of a repetition of the A. T. Stewart grave-robbing conspiracy, and they have caused the massive resting place of the bones of the great financier to be closely guarded by day and by night. The guards are two well-paid special policemen, ex-Police Captain G. W. Gastlin and ex-Policeman Richard Holloway.

Each does twelve hours duty in the twenty-four. By mutual agreement the two watchmen exchange every morning. At the present time Holloway is on duty at night, and he remains in the immediate vicinity of the tomb, sheltered in indecent weather only by the portico of the mausoleum. Woodlawn cemetery is regularly patrolled at night by a watchman, who makes a complete round once every hour, recording his movements by means of an automatic clock at each of the three gates.

This watchman crosses over Central avenue, which passes the Gould tomb, and part of his duty is to note the presence of the special watchman, of which he makes a report every morning. Watchman Holloway was seen by a New York World reporter. "There is nothing to tell," said he, "except that the captain and I are employed to watch the tomb. It is a little lonesome at night, and during the winter and on rainy nights it is very uncomfortable. But then there are men who have been worse places. The cemetery authorities would not, of course, permit the erection of a sentry box, so whoever is on the night watch has got to meet the weather with rubbers and thick overcoats.

"The monotony of the watch at night is broken by the cemetery watchman who comes around every hour. The regular city mounted policeman also rides through, and he generally stops to bid the time of night. In the summer time the job is all right. Then I sit down on the steps of the tomb and smoke and read by the light of a lantern."

"A man gradually learns to surround himself with little comforts, no matter how he is fixed. For instance, I carry a little spirit lamp out there, and when I feel like it I heat myself a cup of good hot coffee. The day watch is as pleasant as an outdoor berth as any man would want. Capt. Gastlin and I have been on this post for two years, and in all that time I have had no adventure worth speaking of."

"No attempt has ever been made to molest the tomb. Anybody that tried it would get a good game. I have the most perfect faith in the security of the tomb. Capt. Gastlin and I have been on this post for two years, and in all that time I have had no adventure worth speaking of."

"It is built throughout of granite, is 33 feet long, 22 feet wide, and 30 feet high to the apex of the roof. The double doors are of bronze, the question being eight feet high and two feet wide, and weighing one ton each. The interior is six feet high. The ceiling is a solid slab of granite weighing six tons. The floor is of one marble slab, ten on each side. The roof of the structure is of slabs of granite. The total weight of the entire mausoleum is 200 tons, and it rests on a concrete foundation eight feet thick."

The Bottomless Pit.
A wonderful natural cavern was discovered in Lafayette county, Georgia, in 1891. It has the usual complement of "rooms," "galleries," "dances," "pits," etc., but its sole title to being something out of the ordinary in the cavern line is a well-lit stage in one of the rooms, which, as far as anyone knows, may once have served as the chimney of a habitation. It is known locally as "the bottomless pit." Stones of large size have been thrown into it with a bang that they would be heard to strike bottom after awhile, but, according to reports, "there was no reverberating sounds borne back to the ear by which the enormous depth could be gauged."

FOR MEN AND WOMEN.

Eighty-two women were successful in gaining the B. A. degree from the London University at the last examination.

CHARLOTTE FOWLER WELLS was the first woman publisher. She has been in business since 1844, and is still at it in New York.

A woman who wanted to play Lady Macbeth in a Troupe amateur show refused to go on because she couldn't have big sleeves for her sleep-walking gown.

For the first time a woman has received the degree of doctor of literature from London University in the person of Miss Davies, a graduate of Gt. Glen.

Mrs. CAMERON-PERIER has kept up the charitable custom of helping two hundred poor widows at Christmas time. This good work was started by Mrs. Carnot.

Mrs. BESSIE L. HACKETT, a New England girl, has received the first prize in writing the best advertisement of the merits of a newly-introduced paint.

Born of the legs of Miss Eva Dooley, of Boston, were amputated at the knee recently to save her life. They were poisoned by the dye in red stockings which she had been wearing.

Mrs. NAT COLLIER, formerly known as the "Montana Cattle Queen," will soon issue a volume of reminiscences, giving a history of over forty years of life in the camp and on the prairie.

At Gardiner, Me., there is a good-looking and spry young woman who draws a grocery wagon. No fear of her wanting her time fooling with the servant girls unless they have got no bonnets.

Mrs. ORNISTON CLARK, the English reformer, says that she has been offered five thousand pounds to be silent and to cease carrying on the crusade against the music halls and similar places of amusement.

Mrs. HENRIETTA M. KING, of Corpus Christi, Tex., owns eighteen hundred and seventy-five square miles of land in Texas, or about a million and a quarter of acres. She inherited this vast domain from her husband, Richard King.

Its Fame Will Live.

The World's Columbian Exposition marked the climax of human achievement. It will live in memory of the crowning glory of modern times. No other development of the closing century can compare with it in practical benefit to mankind.

Who that exhibited is not proud of it? Who that failed to exhibit does not regret the omission? The former are the people of to-day. The latter are relics of the past.

No honor so high as that embodied in an award at the fair. Competition was world-wide, the fruits of ripest experience and noblest endeavors were submitted for examination.

Honest tribunals, composed of eminent scientists, examined and passed upon the claims of exhibitors. Their judgement based on inquiry and justice, proves conclusively the value of any article they commend.

Their approval was stamped on

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

It received the highest award at the fair from a jury headed by the Chief Chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Price's was officially commended for highest leavening power, purity, keeping qualities and general excellence.

COBRA AND ITS VENOM.

Interesting Observations on the Deadliest of All Reptiles.

Thousand or More Persons Die Annually in India from Its Attacks—It Can Actually Kill Without Biting.

Mr. G. R. O'Reilly shows a remarkable familiarity with snakes. In Popular Science Monthly he writes about the cobra and the very interesting facts he tells about this, the deadliest of all snakes, is that it is able to secrete its venom from the ground to the height of a man's face.

Every year 10,000 or more persons lose their lives in India from the bite of the cobra. This has happened from time out of mind, and there is no immediate prospect of stopping it.

There are several varieties of cobra, including Naja tripudians of India, Naja haje of north Africa, and Naja haje of south Africa. True cobras do not exist in other countries. They vary in color from brown to black, but are usually banded with light and dark rings. At full growth they are usually four feet in length and two inches in diameter, but they sometimes reach a length of six feet. Venomous snakes are roughly divided by Mr. O'Reilly into two classes—viperidae and elapidae. The rattlesnake belongs to the former and the cobra to the latter. The head in the rattlesnake is broad and flat and the neck very thin. In the cobra the head, neck and body are of about the same thickness until the tail is reached.

The cobra is very timid. The least motion alarms him. If you stand before a cobra and move your right and left hands up and down it will strike repeatedly to the right and left, following your motions. This habit accounts for the belief that the cobra loves music and dances to it. It is the player's motions which cause the snake to dance. The cobra is very quick-sighted, but practically without hearing, as its head is entirely covered by the skin in the place where the ears would be.

So nervous is the cobra that it will strike at a moving object before it has been within its reach. It is very watchful of its venom. These are some of the peculiar characteristics of the cobra: (1) It rarely opens its mouth when striking, but actually gives its deadly blow without biting. (2) It is deliberately when in a state of apparent death from muscular contortion, and then hang on like a building, the venom flowing all the time into the wound in which its fangs are buried, until it drops at last from sheer exhaustion. (3) It can squirt the venom from its fangs into a person's eyes and thus blind him, for a time at least.

Mr. O'Reilly was first convinced of the venom-squirting habit of the cobra by this incident: "One day, being alone in the bush, I was in an open glade, gliding through the herbage, delaying a little perhaps for an opportunity to get at some birds that were chattering and hopping about on the branches of a thorny, yellow-blossomed acacia. The sun was blazing down fiercely on him, as, with half-distended hood held close to the ground, he slowly passed through the leaves and flowers. For a few minutes I watched his movements through my binocular glass, but, fearing he might notice me and escape in some hole, I picked up my six-foot hunting stick and advanced toward him, intending to press his head to the ground with it and then take him by the neck with my hand.

"He saw me coming and like a valiant warrior that knew his power he faced around and stood erect with expanded hood and quivering tongue, ready to receive me. His bright, black eyes sparkled with energetic defiance and every fiber of his being was electrified with excitement.

"While I was yet ten feet away he struck toward me with such force that the impetus carried him flat to the ground. In a moment he was on his back, his neck he dodged it, and it came instead across the middle of his body. At this moment he was between me and the acacia, with about five feet between his face and mine. I looked into his eyes and held him down firmly. His rage seemed redoubled. He leaned backward to make a more vigorous dash at me, and as he struck forward the mouth partially opened and two tiny streams of venom shot from his fangs, one a spray, one of the other, and me on the face just beneath the eye. Had it gone a little higher up I should have been blinded for months and perhaps had my sight permanently injured.

"This unexpected attack made me hasten the capture so, getting his neck pressed down to the ground with the stick, I soon had him grasped in my hand just behind the head in such a way that he couldn't possibly turn to bite me—which he made every effort to do for some minutes afterward. Taking him home with much satisfaction, I made him threaten my fellow lodger. While lying in his cage I observed him many times squirt the venom from his fangs against the glass of his cage, and I thought my doubts about spitting snakes were removed.

The cobra's poison fangs project beyond the lower lip when it strikes, so that it can injure fatally without biting.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

MILK which has changed may be rendered fit for use by stirring in a little soda.

FRESH meat beginning to sour will sweeten if placed out of doors in the air over night.

FISH may be scaled more easily by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

To color white pasteboard the color of leather soak in solution of copperas and then in ammonia.

CLEAR brass with hot water, rub with a soft cloth and lemon juice, rinse in hot water and polish with a chamois.

A cup of hot milk flavored with orange-flower water, or one of beef tea, is excellent for an invalid just before retiring.

An authority on domestic economy advises the housekeeper of limited means to save her fire and strength and do as much ironing with the clothes wringer as possible. Plain pieces, like towels, pillow cases, sheets, merinos and stockings put through the wringer will be smooth enough for all practical purposes, if the rollers are light.

HENRY C. HANSBROUGH.

North Dakota's Senior Senator is a Newspaper Man.

The senior senator from the state of North Dakota, Hon. Henry C. Hansbrough, began his career as a printer, but soon passed into the profession of journalism, from which he graduated as a statesman. He passed the days of his boyhood in the little town of Prairie du Rocher, which is situated in Randolph county, Ill. It was here that he was born on the 20th day of January, 1848, and where he received his common-school education. From this place he removed, in 1867, with his parents to California, in which latter state he picked up the trade of a printer. Two years later he began the publication of a daily paper at San Jose, and later became connected with the San Francisco Chronicle, with which he remained until the year 1870.

Returning east Mr. Hansbrough published for two years a paper at Baraboo, Wis. Removing in 1882 to what was then the territory of Dakota, he continued to engage in journalism. It was about this time that he became prominent as an advocate of the republican policy of dividing the territory and admitting both sections to the union. He was twice elected mayor of Devil's Lake. In 1888 he was chosen as a delegate to the republican national convention at Chicago, and was there chosen to act as national committee man for North Dakota. Shortly after this he was elected by his district as a representative in the Fifty-first congress, and in 1891 the state legislature sent him to the United States senate as a republican, to succeed Gilbert A. Pierce. Senator Hansbrough's term will expire March 3, 1897.

SENATOR H. C. HANSBROUGH, N. D.

NERVE-TRYING BUSINESS. A shoe salesman tells of his troubles with women customers. "I don't believe," said a salesman in a retail shoe house on State street, where a vast number of shoes are sold every day and principally to ladies, "that any business in the world can try a man's nerve and patience like this. The best and sweetest tempered woman in the world becomes a cold-blooded brute the moment she starts to buy a pair of shoes. She has a fixed idea in her head that she wears a certain size and any attempt of a salesman to convince her that she wears a size larger is regarded as an affront. I have actually had women walk away from me and ask the manager to send some one else to wait on them because I showed them by measuring the outline of their feet, drawn on a piece of paper, that they were mistaken in their size. I remember particularly one lady who insisted that she wore a 3 A, and had never worn anything else in her life. The shoe she had on was a 4 A, although marked one size smaller. I was imprudent enough to demonstrate this to her, and she took the shoes from my hand and walked with one stocking foot to another salesman. Yes,

FACTS ABOUT THE SEA. Dr. Young estimates the mean depth of the Atlantic at about 16,000 feet. The saline matter held in solution in sea water comprises one thirtieth of its weight. The water of the Mediterranean contains a greater portion of salt than that of the ocean. The sea-cypress a kind of coral, sometimes has 6,000 to 10,000 animals on a single branch. Nearly three-fourths of the world's drainage, directly or indirectly, pours into the Atlantic ocean. It is estimated that the water of the whole ocean contains in solution over 2,000,000 tons of pure silver. It is estimated that two years are required for the gulf water to travel from Florida to the coast of Norway. The wide bottom of the ocean is covered with a layer of calcareous ooze, mingled with the skeletons and other animal remains of its inhabitants. If it were not for the salts of the ocean the whole sea would soon become a mass of corruption, owing to the decay of the organic matter it contains. A trusting journeyman. Some people are too trusting for their own good. At a recent trial a prisoner entered a plea of "not guilty," when one of the jury put on his hat and started for the door. The judge called him back and informed him that he could not leave until the case was tried. "Pled!" cried the juror, "why he acknowledges that he is not a juror."

FACTS ABOUT THE SEA.

Dr. Young estimates the mean depth of the Atlantic at about 16,000 feet.

The saline matter held in solution in sea water comprises one thirtieth of its weight.

The water of the Mediterranean contains a greater portion of salt than that of the ocean.

The sea-cypress a kind of coral, sometimes has 6,000 to 10,000 animals on a single branch.

Nearly three-fourths of the world's drainage, directly or indirectly, pours into the Atlantic ocean.

It is estimated that the water of the whole ocean contains in solution over 2,000,000 tons of pure silver.

It is estimated that two years are required for the gulf water to travel from Florida to the coast of Norway.

The wide bottom of the ocean is covered with a layer of calcareous ooze, mingled with the skeletons and other animal remains of its inhabitants.

If it were not for the salts of the ocean the whole sea would soon become a mass of corruption, owing to the decay of the organic matter it contains.

A trusting journeyman. Some people are too trusting for their own good.

At a recent trial a prisoner entered a plea of "not guilty," when one of the jury put on his hat and started for the door.

The judge called him back and informed him that he could not leave until the case was tried. "Pled!" cried the juror, "why he acknowledges that he is not a juror."

Its Fame Will Live.

The World's Columbian Exposition marked the climax of human achievement. It will live in memory of the crowning glory of modern times. No other development of the closing century can compare with it in practical benefit to mankind.

Who that exhibited is not proud of it? Who that failed to exhibit does not regret the omission? The former are the people of to-day. The latter are relics of the past.

No honor so high as that embodied in an award at the fair. Competition was world-wide, the fruits of ripest experience and noblest endeavors were submitted for examination.

Honest tribunals, composed of eminent scientists, examined and passed upon the claims of exhibitors. Their judgement based on inquiry and justice, proves conclusively the value of any article they commend.

Their approval was stamped on

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

It received the highest award at the fair from a jury headed by the Chief Chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Price's was officially commended for highest leavening power, purity, keeping qualities and general excellence.

COBRA AND ITS VENOM.

Interesting Observations on the Deadliest of All Reptiles.

Thousand or More Persons Die Annually in India from its Attacks—It Can Actually Kill Without Biting.

Mr. G. R. O'Reilly shows a remarkable familiarity with snakes. In Popular Science Monthly he writes about the cobra. Among the very interesting facts he tells about this, the deadliest of all snakes, is that it is able to inject its venom from the ground to the height of a man's face.

Every year 10,000 or more persons lose their lives in India from the bite of the cobra. This has happened from time out of mind, and there is no immediate prospect of stopping it.

There are several varieties of cobra, including Naja tripartita of India, Naja haje of north Africa, and Naja bohemachates of South Africa. True cobras do not exist in other countries. They vary in color from brown to black, but are usually banded with light and dark rings. At full growth they are usually four feet in length and two inches in diameter, but they sometimes reach a length of six feet.

Venomous snakes are roughly divided by Mr. O'Reilly into two classes—viperidae and elapidae. The rattlesnake belongs to the former and the cobra to the latter. The head in the rattlesnake is broad and flat and the neck very thin. In the cobra the head, neck and body are of about the same thickness until the tail is reached.

The cobra is very timid. The least motion alarms him. If you stand before a cobra and move your right and left hands up and down it will strike repeatedly to the right and left, following your motions. This habit accounts for the belief that the cobra loves music and dances to it. It is the player's motions which cause the snake to dance. The cobra is very quick-sighted, but practically without hearing, as its head is entirely covered by the skin in the place where the ears would be.

So nervous is the cobra that it will strike at a moving object before it has

HE STOOD ERECT, WITH EXPANDED HOOD. COBRA WHEN IT REACHES. IT IS VERY WASTEFUL OF ITS VENOM.

These are three of the peculiar characteristics of the cobra: (1) It rarely opens its mouth when striking, but actually gives a deadly blow without biting. (2) It bites deliberately when in a state of apparent death from muscular contortion, and will then hang on like a bulldog, the venom flowing all the time into the wound in which its fangs are buried, thus it chaps at last from sheer exhaustion. (3) It can squirt the venom from its fangs into a person's eyes and thus blind him, for a time at least.

Mr. O'Reilly was first convinced of the venom-squirting habit of the cobra by this incident: "One day, being alone in the bush, I saw a cobra coiled with neck and white. He was in an open glade, girdling through the herbage, delaying a little perhaps for an opportunity to get at some birds that were chattering and hopping about on the branches of a thorny, yellow-blossomed acacia. The sun was blazing down fiercely on him, as, half-distended hood held close to the ground, he slowly passed the leaves and flowers. For a few minutes I watched his movements through my binocular glass, but, fearing he might notice me and escape in some hole, I picked up my six-foot hunting stick and rushed toward him, intending to press his head to the ground with it and then take him by the neck with my hand.

"He saw me coming and like a valiant warrior that knew his power he faced around and stood erect with expanded hood and quivering tongue, ready to receive me. His bright, black eyes sparkled with energetic defiance and every fiber of his being was electrified with excitement.

"While I was yet ten feet away he struck toward me with such force that the impact carried him flat to the ground. In trying to pick up my stick he had dislocated it and it came instead across the middle of his body. At this moment he was between me and the sun, with about one foot between his face and mine. I looked into his eyes and held him down firmly. His rage seemed redoubled. He leaned backward to make a more vigorous dash at me, and as he struck forward the mouth partially opened and two tiny streams of venom shot from his fangs and passed a few inches from my face and mine. I was so close to him on the face just beneath the eye. Had it gone a little higher up I should have been blinded for months and perhaps had my sight permanently injured.

"This unexpected attack made me hasten the capture; so, getting his neck pressed down to the ground with the stick, I soon had him grasped in my hand just behind the head in such a way that he couldn't possibly turn to bite me—which he made every effort to do for some minutes afterward. Taking him home with much satisfaction, I made him thereafter my fellow lodger. While living in his cage I observed him many times squirt the venom from his fangs against the glass of his front. Thereafter my doubts about squirting snakes were removed. The cobra's poison fangs project beyond the lower lips when it strikes, so that it can injure fatally without biting.

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

Milk which has changed may be rendered fit for use by stirring in a little soda.

Fresh meat beginning to sour will sweeten if placed out of doors in the air over night.

Fish may be scaled more easily by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

To color white pasteboard the color of leather soak in solution of copperas and then in ammonia.

CLEAR brass with hot water, rub with a soft cloth and lemon juice, rinse in hot water and polish with a chamola.

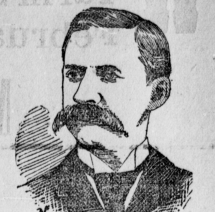

A cup of hot milk flavored with orange-flower water, or one of beef tea, is excellent for an invalid just before retiring.

An authority on domestic economy advises the housekeeper of limited means to save her money by stretching the clothes wringer as possible. Plain places, like towels, pillow cases, sheets, and do as much ironing with the wringer will be smooth enough for all practical purposes, if the rollers are tight.

HENRY C. HANSBROUGH.

North Dakota's Senior Senator is a Newspaper Man.

The senior senator from the state of North Dakota, Hon. Henry C. Hansbrough, began his career as a printer, but soon passed into the profession of journalism, from which he graduated as a statesman. He passed the days of his boyhood in the little town of Prairie du Rocher, which is situated in Bandolph county, Ill. It was here that he was born on the 30th day of January, 1848, and where he received his common-school education. From this place he removed, in 1867, with his parents to California, in which latter state he picked up the trade of a printer. Two years later he began the publication of a daily paper at San Jose, and later became connected with the San Francisco Chronicle, with which he remained until the year 1879.

SENATOR H. C. HANSBROUGH, R. D. remained until the year 1879. Returning east Mr. Hansbrough published for two years a paper at Baraboo, Wis. Removing in 1883 to what was then the territory of Dakota, he continued to engage in journalism. It was about this time that he became prominent as an advocate of the republican policy of dividing the territory and admitting both sections to the union.

He was twice elected mayor of Devil's Lake. In 1888 he was chosen as a delegate to the republican national convention at Chicago, and was there chosen to act as national committeeman for North Dakota. Shortly after this he was elected by his district as a representative in the Fifty-first congress, and in 1891 the state legislature sent him to the United States senate as a republican, to succeed Gilbert A. Pierce. Senator Hansbrough's term will expire March 3, 1897.

NERVE-TRYING BUSINESS.

A Shoe Salesman Tells of His Troubles with Women Customers.

"I do not believe," said a salesman in a big retail shoe store on State street, where a vast number of shoes are sold every day and principally to ladies, "that any business in the world will try a man's nerve and patience like this. The best and sweetest tempered woman in the world tomorrow, a cold-blooded cynic the moment she starts to buy a pair of shoes. She has a fixed idea in her head that she wears a certain size and any attempt of a salesman to convince her that she wears a size larger is regarded as an affront. I have actually had women walk away from me and ask the manager to send some one else to wait on them because I showed them by measuring the outline of their feet, drawn on a piece of paper, that they were mistaken in their

"I remember particularly one lady who insisted that she wore a 3 A, and had never worn anything else in her life. The shoe she had on was a 4 A, although marked one size smaller. I was imprudent enough to demonstrate this to her, and she took the shoes from my hand and walked with one stocking foot to another salesman. Yes—terday I had a customer who tried on fourteen pairs of shoes, and then did not buy, because she could not get her foot into the size that she declared was her fit. By the time we are ready to go home I feel sour enough to make vinegar out of cider by looking at it."

Money Value of Hands and Fingers.

An engineering journal has collected some interesting statistics from the tables of a German miners' insurance company. If a man loses both hands he is regarded as entailing a 100 per cent. loss. In other words, he has been deprived of the ability to earn a livelihood. The loss of the right hand depreciates the value of an individual as a worker 70 to 80 per cent., while the loss of the left hand leaves him with only 20 to 30 per cent. of his original earning capacity. The thumb is taken as playing a part equal to 20 to 30 per cent. as a bread winner; the first finger of the right hand is put at 14 to 18 per cent. and of the left hand at from 8 to 18.5 per cent. and the middle finger of either hand is worth from 10 to 12 per cent. The value of the third finger is put down as from 7 to 9 per cent., while that of the little finger is estimated at 9 to 12 per cent. These values may appear arbitrary, but it is explained that the apparent inconsistency in the rating is occasioned by the difference in the trades followed by the injured ones.

If somebody will kindly put us on the "inside" of this movement, we will endeavor to make a few editorial comments appropriate to the occasion and the subject.

It is said the president of Guatemala will be asked to resign if he erects any Barrios to place with Mexico. The Guatemala's are not so anxious to fight, bleed and Diaz the Mexicans appear to be. In fact the populace has given the president to understand that he has Guatemala letter of apology at once to the irate Mexicans, and let them take the disputed territory.

The next Democratic State Convention may be expected to declare for a nearer approach to free trade, for the income tax, for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with some restrictions as a compromise and for the election of senators by the popular vote; and it will take some ingenious work to get through on an endorsement of the Cleveland administration, unless all references to finances, civil service reform and the Hawaiian question are left out.

The Louisville Post's correspondent, Omega, is clamoring for the nomination of Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner for Governor, on the ground that he is the strongest Democrat in Kentucky. If Omega will consult the election returns of 1887, he will learn that Gen. Buckner only beat Bradley 16,000 votes for Governor, the smallest majority given any Democrat in Kentucky since the war. If we take not, Gen. Buckner was later beaten for delegate to Chicago in 1892 in his own party. He is thoroughly identified with one of the unfortunate factions in State politics and how Omega expects him to develop any more strength in the future than he has in the past, is a mystery to those out of the secret.

By pursuing their same old tactics of presenting treasury notes for payment in "coin" the goldbugs have again reduced the gold surplus below the required amount and another bond issue is necessary at once. These notes are payable in either gold or silver coin, but as silver has been devalued, Secretary Carlisle chooses to pay them only in gold. There have been two issues of bonds within a year, amounting to $100,000,000. The issue this time will be for $100,000,000 and the operations of the new tariff law are expected to supply enough revenue to make further issues unnecessary. There are $800,000,000 of the legal tender notes payable in coin and when Wall street wants more bonds, enough of these notes are presented to exhaust the slender surplus and the bonds must be issued. The payment of these notes in silver would put a stop to these raids on the treasury.

The Minnesota Republicans have elected Governor Knute Nelson to succeed Washburn in the senate. The new senator was born near Bergen, Norway, February 2, 1842, and came to America in 1849. The lynching of a county treasurer named Scott at O'Neill, Nebraska, who stole the public funds in his hands, has developed the fact that he was executed by a band of vigilantes, bound by an oath to regulate things generally. A bank cashier at Milligan, Neb., showed up short Saturday and the vigilance committee finds more work on its hands. In fact it seems to be kept too busy in Nebraska to turn its attention to other states where a like need is felt.

It makes quite a handsome little volume and the story is by far the best work from Miss Rives' pen. Closely associated with the great Eastern Question, also, as well as possessing a highly picturesque interest of its own, is M. de Blowitz's account of "A Trip to Rome-Herzegovina." The story tells the fascinating "Story of the Silkworm," charmingly illustrated with photographs specially taken for the purpose in a famous silk-raising district of Italy in Northern Italy. The breezy log of "A Yachting Cruise in Scotch Waters," with numerous sketches of the same, is contributed by Commodore John MacLellan, of the Brooklyn Yacht Club.

Back to the Army. After a violent scene by a vote of 807 to 815, the French chamber of deputies has decided in M. Mirman had been exempted from military service on engaging to teach for ten years, but resigned his professorship before the time was up, when he was elected deputy. The minister of war then ordered him to join his regiment and the chamber agrees in the view that he must serve his term before he can take his seat as a deputy.

MODELS OF WARSHIPS.
 On Exhibition in the Navy Department at Washington.
 A Choice Collection of Battleships, Armored Cruisers, Turreted Monitors, Harbor Defense Rams and Gunboats in Miniature.
 [Special Washington Letter.]
 West of the white house, and overlooking it, is a large granite and marble edifice known as the state, war and navy building. It is by many regarded as second only to the capitol for beauty and approximation of architectural perfection. Beneath its roof are the offices and subordinate bureaus of the secretary of state, the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy. The secretary of state occupies the south wing of the building. The secretary of war sits in the central part of the west corridor while in the east wing, distant, but immediately opposite, is the office of the secretary of the navy. The entrance of the offices of the master spirits of the army and navy at either end of the corridor running east and west through the center of the building, upon the second floor.

 Visitors to the navy department are always interested in the rows of glass cases which occupy the main corridor near the office of the secretary of the navy. They contain perfect, highly polished and burnished models of Uncle Sam's craft battleships and cruisers. The custom of putting models of the different ships of our navy on exhibition in the navy department was inaugurated about 1880, and new models have been added from time to time until there are now fifteen in all. This collection comprises representations of first and second-class battleships, armored cruisers, protected cruisers, single and double-turreted monitors, harbor defense rams, light-draught gunboats, and last, but not least, the old sailing vessels. There are the models of the gunboats Yorktown and Petrel; the monitor Miantonomoh; the protected cruisers Charleston, Baltimore, Newark and Hancock; the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius; the steel-armored turreted battleships Texas, Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon; the steel-armored turreted cruisers Maine, New York and Monterey; the steel harbor defense ram Katahdin; and the celebrated wooden cruiser Kearsarge, recently lost on the rocks of Roncesvalles reef.

Some of these models were made by skilled mechanics at the Washington navy yard. But the models of the Yorktown, Hancock, Miantonomoh, Charleston, Petrel, Kearsarge, Newark and Katahdin were built by the model-maker of the bureau of construction and repair of the navy department, who has his shop in the basement of the building. Owing to the fact that the workmanship on the models is very fine and delicate and that the material used in their construction is the best obtainable, the expense incurred in making one of them is large, so the money to pay for the labor and material is taken from the regular appropriation made by congress for the navy department contingent fund.
 All of the models in the collection are made on a scale of one-quarter of an inch to the foot, so that they range in length from four to seven feet, most of them being about five feet long and two or three feet high, varying, of course, according to the size of the big ships. The models are such exact representations of the originals that not even a rope in the rigging is omitted in making them. They have miniature of the guns comprising the battery of each vessel and every other part of the construction, so that one who sees the model in the case can form an exact idea of how the ship appears when afloat at sea. To protect them from the dust and the hands and fingers of curious visitors the models are kept in large glass cases which rest on beautiful oak and walnut stands. The guns comprising the battery of each vessel are made of nickel and are finished to a high polish. Little tiny lifeboats of the vessels are also on the models and are made of cedar wood, varnished and painted.

 Outside of the cases containing the models are cards giving a description of each vessel and part of its history. The cards state the size, type, propulsion, kind of hull, displacement and condition; whether building or in the service. Naturally the more modern triple screw propulsion armored cruisers attract most attention from visitors on account of their magnificence. But the model of the wooden ship Kearsarge always attracts attention, and everything in connection with her history is regarded with the keenest interest. Undoubtedly the handsomest model in the collection is that of the three sister ships Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon. The cards state that these are to be first-class battleships, and that the Indiana and Massachusetts are building at the yards of Cramp & Sons at Philadelphia, while the Oregon is being constructed at the Union Iron works, San Francisco. These ships have steel hulls with a displacement of 10,000 tons each. They will be of twin screw propulsion, and when completely fitted out, each will carry a main battery of sixteen guns.
 One of the recent additions to the collection is the model of the second-class battleship Texas which is now being built at the Norfolk navy yard. The model of the Hancock is another which is viewed with interest by visitors. This vessel is used exclusively as a practice ship for the Annapolis naval cadets. Before being graduated from the academy the cadets must have had three years' actual service at sea, and the Hancock is the vessel upon which they always take their cruises. Every ambitious young naval cadet who visits Washington makes it a point to call at the navy department, and when in the building he views the model of the ship which is to be his home for three years at sea. The Hancock is of steel hull, with twin screw propulsion, and has a battery of four guns.
 No matter what hour of the day one may visit the navy department, curious tourists may be seen standing before the miniature types of our modern navy. Many of them have note books in their hands, jotting down enough concerning the descriptions of the models to enable them to keep green in their memory the sights which they have seen in the national capital. But when you make a trip to Washington you may save yourself that trouble, by simply calling upon the chief clerk of the navy department whose office is near by, and over the door of whose room you may see the printed and painted sign "Chief Clerk." He is a very courteous gentleman and will hand you a little pamphlet giving descriptions of the vessels and steel engravings of them. These pamphlets you will find better reminders of what you have seen, and the dear folks and neighbors at home will have a better understanding of what you have seen, then you can possibly convey to them in words.
 The visitor can also readily obtain information which will prove interesting and valuable by asking questions of the gentlemen who can always be seen in one corner of the hall, just outside of the door of the secretary of the navy, and partly surrounded by the cases containing the models. They have chairs and a writing table there, and are very busy apparently; but they usually have time, to explain a few things particularly to gentlemen and ladies whom they recognize as strangers here. They are reporters for our daily newspapers, and there they congregate to receive information for publication concerning naval affairs.
 Whoever has opportunity to look upon these models and read descriptions of the construction of ships with patriotic pride and a sense of security. These pretty little toys, bright and brilliant with their polished nickel and brass furnishings, bristling with guns represent the new navy, the modern conditions at sea; and our naval officers and sailors can carry our flag anywhere in such ships without a blush of shame. On the contrary our seamen can float over the waters of the world as proudly as the flag floats in the free air of heaven. Ten years ago, in old, time-worn and obsolete wooden ships, our Yankee seamen were ashamed of their craft. These little models represent a new era. It is well that they are on exhibition in the navy department, so that our people may see, at least in miniature, what has been done during a decade for the American navy.

THE APOLITICIAN FOR HIS FATHER.
 "Angelina," said the youth, hotly, as he entered the parlor, "it remains for you to say whether our mutual friendship shall continue or be ended here at once."
 "What is the matter?" asked the beautiful girl, opening her lovely dark blue eyes to their widest extent.
 "Your father has just called me a blasted idiot."
 "And you want me to apologise for him?"
 "I do."
 "Then I cheerfully do it. Father is altogether too frank, and I have often said that even the truth shouldn't always be spoken."—N. Y. Press.

which represent tremendous death-dealing power, represent "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." They represent the power for defense and offense against the nations of the world, when our rights are threatened or our territory invaded. They give us all to understand that the time of peace we have been wise enough to prepare for war, and thus to make war less likely. They make every citizen feel that, manned with typical Yankee sailors, if Japan or any other nation should take us for Chinamen the originals of those battleships and cruisers would soon compel them to retreat. Two years ago our cities on the coasts of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and also upon the great lakes, would have been at the mercy of the navy of the United States, or even little Denmark. To-day the people of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Norfolk, Charleston, Mobile, Galveston, New Orleans, San Francisco, Chicago and Detroit may feel secure, no matter what international complications might arise. Those little models, pretty and harm-

PLAY TIME.
 For over 13 hundred years November 13 was observed in England as a festival. It commemorated the death of Harlequin and the accession of Edward the Confessor, by which the country was delivered from the yoke of the Danes.
 The movable Christian holidays are Easter, Ascension day (ten days before Whit Sunday), Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, Palm Sunday, Pentecost, Sexagesima Sunday and Trinity Sunday. All depend for their date on Easter.
 The Festival of St. Peter and Vincula, held on August 1, was the continuance of a Roman festival in honor of the victory won by Octavius over Anthony at the battle of Actium. Its observance was continued, but its object changed by order of Theodosius.
 A fortnight after Easter the English formerly observed a festival called Hook Tide. It was customary for the women to go out into the streets with cords and bind the men whom they met until the latter purchased their release with small contributions of money.
 The Greek holidays and festivals were very numerous. There were fifty besides the latter purchased their release with small contributions of money.
 These special festivals there were times set apart for the Isthmian, Nemean, Pythian and Olympian games, all of which were popular holidays.

GOITRE IN THE NECK
 The Electropoise has cured what was supposed to be goitre on the neck of Mrs. Low Thompson of Montgomery, Ky. The enlargement began to diminish soon after treatment of the Electropoise was applied; at this time it does not show at all. Large quantities of mucus was thrown out, and sometimes corruption an inch long and as large as my little finger. Others of my friends have the Electropoise and the one in my family has proved its curative powers on more than one occasion.

 Dear Sirs:—I write to inform you that I am more than satisfied with the investment I made with the Electropoise. I am now a well woman where I was a perfect wreck from the effects of asthma. I commenced treatment last July.
 Mrs. W. H. RECTOR,
 Cadiz, Ky. May 14, 1894.
 Mrs. Rector, under date of August 3d, says: "My health continues good; I have no return of asthma and am in better health than I have ever been in my life; have gained in weight over 15 pounds. A neighbor of mine is using it for goitre, and it has very much reduced the largeness of her neck; think she will be entirely cured."
 Electropoise put out on trial for four months for $10. Send for valuable book free.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.
 An official rat catcher has been appointed by the Liverpool city council. A JAPANESE bride's playthings are burned on her wedding day, typifying the end of her childhood.
 THERE are not more than twenty-five Chinese women in New York. They carefully avoid the public gaze.
 GAME WARDEN ATWOOD, of Maine, thinks he has a great disease. The doctors diagnosed it as "diarycystosyringotakaleids."
 The hygienic congress at Buda Pesth brought out the fact that there are four times as many men who stammer as there are women who are so afflicted.
 It is claimed that the use of bicycles in Toledo, O., has depreciated the value of electric street railway plants in that city one million five hundred thousand dollars during the past two years.
 The thrown-away carbons of electric lights in Westchester are eagerly gathered up by sufferers from rheumatism, who believe that in carrying around pieces of the carbon the pain is lessened.
 TWO MEN in Mississippi had a fight in a room. One threw the other out of the window, and, thinking that he had killed him, jumped himself. They fell a distance of thirty feet and neither was hurt.
